History | The Community Foundation of Central Georgia was founded in 1993 by a group of citizens interested in encouraging philanthropy and strengthening communities. Since then, the Foundation has awarded over $22 million in grants through its donor advised, unrestricted, designated, field-of-interest, scholarship, and organizational endowment funds. As a local center for philanthropy, the Community Foundation of Central Georgia works with individuals, families, corporations, private foundations, and non-profit organizations to carry out their charitable objectives and address emerging community issues. It is one of more than 700 community foundations in the country.

We help our donors establish long-term charitable funds, using the most tax-advantaged methods, to benefit their causes and our community.

Mission | To enhance the quality of life for the people of Central Georgia. To accomplish its mission, the Community Foundation has five primary goals:

1. To be a catalyst for the establishment of endowments to benefit the community now and for all time.
2. To provide leadership and resources in identifying and meeting local needs.
3. To serve donors' varied interests and needs.
4. To promote local philanthropy.
5. To serve as stewards of funds.

We have a lot to celebrate!

The Community Foundation of Central Georgia's 1,000 donors invested over $4 million in our community for the year ending June 30, 2006. Through our 150 donor advised, scholarship, unrestricted, organizational endowment, and designated funds, we made 544 grants to non-profits who are doing great work in our region. Three years ago we made 137 grants totaling $2.9 million—what a jump! The Foundation has also experienced exciting asset growth. We've grown 75% in the past three years, and now have $40 million in assets! This wonderful growth is attributable to the generosity of many Central Georgians and their desire to give something back to the place they call home.

CFCG has become a local center for philanthropy. We help our donors become more effective philanthropic investors, and our non-profit partners become more effective and accountable. In the past 13 years, many individuals, families, and businesses have come together to support Central Georgia by establishing a fund. Remember, you give through the Community Foundation, not to it. All of our funds are centered on donors' goals and interests. We offer family involvement—now and forever—strong administrative support at a reasonable cost, anonymity if desired, and wonderful tax advantages.

Our success is in no small measure due to the tremendous efforts of our volunteer Board members. We are especially appreciative of our out-going Board members Virgil Adams, Jimmy Patton, and Jo Wilbanks who provided six years of superior service to the Foundation. And we cannot say enough to thank our outgoing chairman, Albert Reichert, Jr. for the leadership he has provided for two years in that role, and the incredible contribution he has made during his tenure on our Board since its inception. He has led us to new heights in asset growth and grantmaking, and ensured that the Foundation's governance is strong. In fact, this spring CFCG was recognized by the Council on Foundations for having organizational and financial practices that are in accordance with the National Standards for U.S. Community Foundations. This designation affirms that our operational and financial practices are legal, ethical, and effective.

We enter the next few years with excitement and great expectations. We hope to see donor advised and unrestricted funds created to support every community in Central Georgia. We work for our donors—for now and for the future—to help them support the communities and charitable organizations important to them. Thank you for your continued support!

2006 Al Lucas Scholarship Recipients

"He could see so many good things that money used in this way could bring to the community, particularly in providing the means for non-profits to remain stable and grow."

Charles F. Heard Fund

Donor Advised Funds offer a high level of involvement and flexibility while freeing the donor from the administrative time and expense associated with creating and running a private foundation. Donors have the privilege of recommending grants to charitable organizations that match their interests. The Community Foundation staff shares information on local non-profit organizations and community projects the donor might find of interest. Advised funds allow the donor to involve children and family members and name successor advisors. The Community Foundation prides itself on recording the original donor's interests and the philanthropic intent of the fund. We want to ensure a legacy is built for each family and their advised fund.

Great good is brought to a community when a resident has the heart and will to use his means in support of worthy agencies and non-profits. Such a man was the late Charles F. Heard, who passed away on April 3, 2006. Mr. Heard had a distinguished career in banking and insurance and a lifelong dedication to leadership—not just membership—in the causes in which he believed. The list of Mr. Heard's activities is a long one, and foremost among the organizations in which he assumed leadership roles are First Presbyterian Church, where he was an elder and Chancel Choir member, and the Community Foundation, where he served as a founding Board member and to which he and his wife, Betty Finn Heard, were among the earliest donors. "The Church and the Community Foundation were very important parts of Charles' life," said Mrs. Heard, who recalled accompanying her husband in 1993 to a meeting at the City Club to discuss the formation of a community foundation for Central Georgia. The Heards became members of the Founders' Society, those who donated funds to support the Foundation's initial operations. "Charles felt like the Community Foundation had such possibilities for this community," Mrs. Heard said. "With his background in banking and insurance, he could see so many good things that money used in this way could bring to the community, particularly in providing the means for non-profits to remain stable and grow."

The Heards raised three children, Charles Heard, Jr., William Curry Heard, and Isabelle Heard Sullivan, and there are seven grandchildren between them. After Mr. Heard developed symptoms of Alzheimer's disease more than 12 years ago, his family created a donor advised fund in his name. Since the two sons and their families live out of town, Mrs. Heard and

Mrs. Sullivan are the principal advisors to the Fund. They have made the Alzheimer's Association the recipient of the Fund's grants so far, with the money earmarked for the Association's Caregiver TimeOut. The Program provides funding for respite care assistance for the patient and the family. "The Caregiver TimeOut Program is something that is so needed and so much help to families caring for an Alzheimer's patient," Mrs. Heard said. "We thought that would be a place where the money could do a great deal of good."

Mrs. Heard said she has great faith in the Community Foundation and its goals and objectives. She especially likes the flexibility of a donor advised fund, which allows the family to make grant recommendations whenever they wish and to whatever causes interest them.

The administrative duties are handled by the Community Foundation staff and fund holders receive the benefit of professional investment management. Mrs. Heard is also pleased that as time passes, the grandchildren, who greatly loved and respected their grandfather, will become the decision-makers for the Fund that bears his name. Mrs. Sullivan said that her two children, daughter Morgan, and son Carl, are aware of the Fund and understand that their grandfather was very interested in the Community Foundation. She will talk with them about the responsibility they and the other grandchildren will have in recommending grants from the Fund. "The Community Foundation meant a lot to Daddy," Mrs. Sullivan said. "It's wonderful for the family to be able to give back in this way, to the community Daddy was so involved in."

"His concern for young people will continue over the years to touch an ever-widening circle of young lives."

Scholarship Funds allow donors to invest in the future by helping deserving students pursue higher education. Students benefit from the financial assistance as well as the academic recognition of being a scholarship recipient. The Community Foundation will work with each donor to establish selection criteria, scholarship guidelines, an application process, procedures for awarding the scholarship, and appoint selection committee members. If requested by the donor, the scholarship can be listed on our website at www.cfcga.org, and students can review selection criteria and download an application.

Al Lucas Memorial Scholarship Fund

When the family of Al Lucas established a scholarship fund in his name at the Community Foundation of Central Georgia, they memorialized the late football star with an investment in the future of Bibb County's youth. In less than two years, the Al Lucas Memorial Scholarship Fund has provided $8,000 in scholarship awards for graduating student-athletes from Bibb County's five public high schools that have athletic programs.

Al Lucas was an outstanding student-athlete and honor student at Northeast High School, who went on to play ball on a full scholarship at Troy State University. He became a defensive lineman for the NFL's Carolina Panthers and later for the AFL's Los Angeles Avengers. While playing pro ball, Lucas was named assistant coach at Northeast, where he encouraged his young protégées to excel in all areas of life. Lucas died as a result of a spinal injury while making a tackle during an AFL game on April 10, 2005. His father, State Representative David Lucas, said that in the days immediately following his son's death, he and his wife, longtime Macon City Councilwoman Elaine Lucas, searched for a way to bring some good out of the tragedy. "You don't ever get over it, but you try to do something that will help other kids as an outcome of what he did," Mr. Lucas said. Because of Al's work with young people, the Lucas family thought of starting a fund that would be advantageous to youth in the community.

"Then we looked for the folks who would do it right, and we went to the Community Foundation," Mr. Lucas said. "And they did it just right."

The Community Foundation staff is always available to work with fund holders to establish scholarship guidelines, selection criteria, and an application process. The staff also will help plan and implement the procedures for awarding the scholarship.

The Scholarship Fund began with gifts from supporters all over the state, amounting to almost $7,000. Then, in late 2005, the Wasserman Foundation stepped in with a grant of $150,000. President and CEO of the Foundation, Casey Wasserman, who also owns the Los Angeles Avengers, said, "Al Lucas' indomitable spirit and force continue on through this important Scholarship Fund that his family formed." The endowed Fund will allow scholarships to be awarded in perpetuity. Donors who contribute to the Scholarship Fund make their own investment in the future of Central Georgia. Scholarship winners gain financial assistance, but also receive academic recognition for winning. The recognition marks a student as a high achiever and can improve his or her chances for a rewarding career.

The Scholarship application calls for students with a caring attitude, high moral character, and characteristics of positive leadership and citizenship. Al Lucas' widow, De'Shonda W. Lucas, said she sees her late husband in each successful applicant's essay. "When I read their letters, they remind me so much of him with their thoughts, their beliefs, and their perseverance," she said. "It meant the world to Al, being an assistant coach at Northeast. He wanted the kids to grow, to be well-rounded, and not just as athletes. He'd tell them, 'go get your paper done,' and 'pull up your pants.' He saw sports at the next level, but the next level didn't have to be sports."

Mrs. Lucas is raising their three-year-old daughter, Mariah, working toward an MBA degree, and is currently sitting for her CPA designation. With all of this she still carries on her late husband's efforts. When she talks to youth, she said, "I tell them what Al would say, 'Stay involved in a whole lot of something, and that will keep you from becoming involved in a whole lot of nothing.'" Those who make gifts to the Al Lucas Scholarship Fund can know that, through their generosity, his concern for young people will continue over the years to touch an ever-widening circle of young lives.

The Community Foundation has provided him with the best possible means of giving back to the community.

F. Tredway Shurling Fund

When the Community Foundation of Central Georgia was in its early years, a number of the community's forward-thinking business men and women contributed both money and other resources to help the Foundation gather a critical mass of assets. The generosity and foresight of these philanthropic individuals helped form the bedrock of the Foundation's amazing growth over the past 13 years. Today the Foundation's total assets stand just shy of $40 million.

Among those initial contributors was prominent businessman Tred Shurling, who gave the Foundation a gift of real estate that subsequently was marketed and sold. "It was clear to a lot of us then that the Community Foundation could be a success and that over the long term it could have a tremendous impact on our community," Mr. Shurling said. "With its growth, it now has significant resources and is doing significant things. It's making a difference."

Mr. Shurling established a donor advised fund that bears his name, and once the land was sold, he began making grants to worthy organizations throughout the community. Twice a year now, he looks at community needs and the requests that come to him. He and his wife, Nancy Shurling, have the pleasure of taking an active role in deciding how the earnings of the Fund will be distributed. Mr. Shurling says the Community Foundation has provided him with the best possible means of giving back to the community. The Foundation provides staff and all record-keeping functions, freeing the Shurlings from the administrative chores of operating a foundation independently. "They provide a real service there. It's much more efficient, they make it real easy, and they're such good custodians of the money," he said.

By working through the Foundation, the Shurlings also are better able to identify community needs that fit their own field of interests. "We're able to help out with a lot of things across the board, especially those that help children," Mr. Shurling said. "We've been able to contribute to the Museum of Arts and Sciences, the Children's Museum, the Macon Symphony, and other worthy non-profits." The Foundation also maintains a permanent record of each fund holder's charitable interests and gifts, ensuring that the focus of the family's wishes will be safeguarded for future generations. And when fund holders receive a request from an organization they are not familiar with, they can turn to the Foundation to provide them with knowledge. "The Community Foundation has built a sizeable database of information, and they know a good bit about the community," Mr. Shurling said. "If I want to know something about an organization, and find out who's doing a good job, they can provide that."

Mr. Shurling said he learned the principles of philanthropy from his parents, who strongly believed in giving monetary support and volunteering time and efforts toward enhancing worthy goals within one's community. "They taught me that when you're fortunate enough to have some time and money, you need to give back and try to make your community a better place than you found it. That's a trite expression, but it holds true," said Mr. Shurling, who is a longtime member of several guiding boards including the Macon State College Foundation Board of Trustees and the Community Foundation Board of Directors. Mr. Shurling also believes that organizations in the Central Georgia community thrive on the willingness of many local people who volunteer their time as well as their financial resources. "In churches, schools, and the many organizations that make up the mosaic of what our community is about, almost all are built on a tremendous amount of volunteer time," he said. Over the years, Mr. Shurling said, he has talked with his children, encouraging them to make room in their lives for philanthropy. Someday, some of them will act as advisors to the Fund he has established. "But right now, Nancy and I make the decisions about who we want to try to help," he said. "It gives you a really good feeling to know you can leave things a little better than you found them."

“We’re already way ahead of our expectations because of the generosity of the Community Foundation.”

Nutcracker of Middle Georgia, Inc. has matured since the days when its Board members held rummage sales to help cover its costs. Founded in 1985 by its Artistic Director, Jean Evans Weaver, the annual presentation of Tchaikovsky’s “Nutcracker Ballet” began with no money, no scenery, and owned no costumes. “We started from scratch,” said Tony Long, Production Manager and past Board President.

This December NMG will present its 22nd annual “Nutcracker,” with a budget of $130,000 and a cast and crew of some 190 adults and children, most of them volunteers. The dancers, costumes, and scenery will be spectacular, including new scenery for Act II. Behind the scenes, however, there is something else spectacular occurring at NMG: the Board has recently established an organizational endowment fund with the Community Foundation of Central Georgia. It is a partnership that will help ensure stability for the “Nutcracker” production in perpetuity. “Tony (Long) came to me two years ago and said he’d like to see the Nutcracker have an endowment fund,” said Donna Williams, NMG’s Finance Chairman, whose career is in the investment business. “I knew how the Community Foundation worked and that we could start such a fund and, hopefully, get more recognition in the community and support from people who are interested in giving.” The Community Foundation also offered an incentive: a challenge grant—$1 up to $5,000 for every $2 NMG raised.

Organizational Endowment Funds:

A unique opportunity for community foundations is working with other non-profit organizations to help them build their endowment. The Community Foundation offers many benefits to these organizations, including high quality and diversified investment management, planned giving support, publicity, and workshops focused on fundraising to those organizations that choose to create their endowment fund at CFCG.

Nutcracker of Middle Georgia Endowment Fund

NMG met the challenge, giving the Fund its first $15,000. "We're already way ahead of our expectations because of the generosity of the Community Foundation," Mr. Long said.

Since that beginning, the Endowment Fund has grown to almost $40,000. While a separate capital fund continues to cover the ballet's production costs, the Endowment Fund serves quite another purpose. "We want it to grow big enough to be able to derive income from it," Mr. Long said. "And we want every year to be able to add something to the Fund." "It will ensure the longevity of the Nutcracker," said Marianna Gebara, Managing Director and past Board President and Treasurer. "It is a sign of how far we've come from where we started back in 1985." The endowment also gives NMG flexibility to meet changing needs over the years and, if necessary, could enable it to survive a major crisis such as fire or flood. The Community Foundation offers NMG professional investment management and influence and outreach throughout Central Georgia. "The Foundation has exposed us to a whole new world of folks who have a vital interest in the community and in the arts," Mr. Long said. "The Fund shows them our stability—lets people know we're in it for the long haul."

From its beginning, NMG has shown responsible stewardship of its resources. In 21 years, the organization has never finished a season in the red or overextended itself to the point of financial trouble. Over time, the Board has purchased the ballet's costumes, props, scenery, and staging equipment, and it hires quality professional dancers each year to fill the principal roles. Costumes, which are expensive and endure wear and tear, are replaced as needed. The scenery, too, gets upgrades, and NMG also pays rent for use of the Grand Opera House. These costs will continue to be covered by the operating fund and maintained through ticket and souvenir sales, grants, and donations. "We continue to rely on and appreciate our corporate and individual donors, and all the volunteers who contribute to the 'Nutcracker' in so many ways," said Board President Suzanne Beers. From necessity, NMG has been careful with even its smallest resources. After each performance Ms. Gebara sweeps up the fabric rose petals that shower the stage in the last act and reuses those that are not too damaged by dancing feet. "Those petals cost us five cents each," she exclaimed.

That kind of stewardship, plus support from the community and the Community Foundation, ensure that the "Nutcracker" will delight future generations. "In our 21 years we've had a tremendous amount of money contributed or we couldn't be doing what we're doing," Mr. Long said. "We're not just some little dance company; we've got more money in scenery and costumes than any of the traveling shows that come to the Grand. Also, many volunteers have helped us reach where we are today. We've had an awful lot of community support and truly appreciate every bit of it."

Through its Responsive Grant Program, CFCG looks to fund projects that further its mission—to enhance the quality of life for the people of Central Georgia. Projects given priority are ones that are unique in addressing needs not currently being met by existing organizations, reach a broad segment of the community, improve an organization's efficiency, encourage self-help or self-sufficiency, encourage matching gifts or enhance fundraising capabilities, and demonstrate collaborations with other non-profit organizations to provide innovative, more efficient approaches to solving community issues.

CFCG has two responsive grant cycles each year with deadlines on April 15 and October 1.

Guidelines and an application can be found on our website at www.cfcga.org or by calling the Foundation office.

CFCG is able to award these grants thanks to a few of Central Georgia's most generous citizens. These wonderful men and women have established unrestricted funds—long-term funds which are available to benefit the community forever.

Unrestricted funds allow the Community Foundation's Board of Directors the discretion to make grants to address the most urgent needs and opportunities in the community.

The following funds make the Responsive Grant Program possible:

L. D. and Minnie Lee Brown Fund
 Jerry A. Davis, Jr. Fund
 Fickling Family Fund

 General Endowment Fund
 William S. Hutchings Fund
 Catherine Stewart Jones Fund

Establishing a Fund with the Community Foundation

Give Now

If you want to establish a fund now and see your charitable dollars at work, creating a fund provides the satisfaction of giving while simplifying transactions and record-keeping. You can use your fund to support charities here in Central Georgia or anywhere in the country. A fund can be established in your name, anonymously, or in the name of a loved one whom you wish to honor or memorialize.

Charitable Funds

How it Works

Donor Advised Fund

Recommend grants to qualified non-profits of your choice with no mandatory annual pay out rate. It is easy and flexible—there are no legal costs and no annual tax returns. You can also add to your fund at any time. You receive maximum tax benefits because CFCG is a public charity, and can access learning opportunities, on-line tools, and expert staff.

Scholarship Fund

Inspire young people by supporting their educational goals. You can benefit students at a particular school, within a specific field of study, or in a specific geographical area.

Unrestricted Fund

Create a fund that will support the most promising, effective, and creative approaches to meeting Central Georgia's most urgent needs. Funds are distributed through the Foundation's Responsive Grant Program after thorough analysis by CFCG's Board of Directors and staff.

Designated Fund

Guarantee ongoing support for one or more of your favorite charitable organizations. This allows funds to be available over time to help sustain the organization or to supplement specific projects.

Field-of-Interest Fund

Designate an interest area for your gift such as the arts, environment, or to benefit a specific county or community in Central Georgia. You can participate in grantmaking with our staff who will help identify organizations performing the most effective work in the field you specify.

The Community Foundation of Central Georgia provides a single, local point of contact for all of your

1. We will always be a local organization with deep roots in the community. Since 1993, we've been an effective steward of charitable resources in the Central Georgia area.

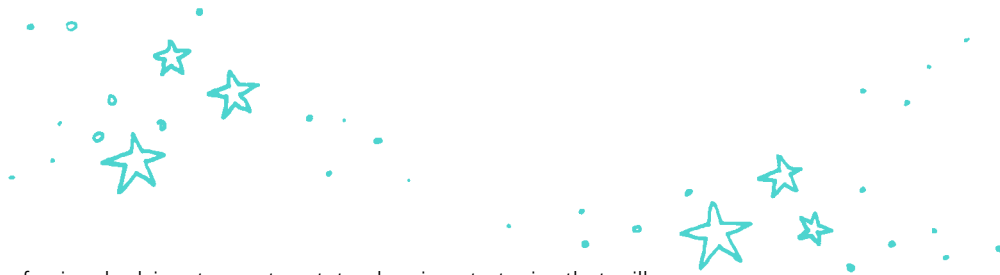

2. We accept a wide variety of assets and facilitate the most complex forms of giving. You can design and name future funds with CFCG using planned gifts of retirement assets, life insurance policies, and other arrangements.

3. We build endowment funds that create personal legacies. You will continue to support your charitable interests in the community because CFCG will always be here to make certain that your charitable interests and intentions are fulfilled according to your wishes.

4. We provide personalized service tailored to your charitable and financial goals. We listen closely to understand and carry out your personal interests and objectives.

5. We have a staff with broad expertise in charitable gifts and community needs. Our professional staff members work closely with fund holders, non-profit organizations, and professional advisors.

Community Foundation of Central Georgia*

Give Later

We will work with you and your professional advisor to create estate planning strategies that will preserve your charitable wishes long beyond your lifetime. You can name unlimited successor advisors to guide the fund when you are no longer able to do so. Through a variety of deferred gift options, you and your loved ones can enjoy financial security and provide resources for community needs to serve generations to come.

Deferred Gifts	How it Works
Bequest	Specify a gift in your will or revocable trust. You retain all assets during your lifetime, and the gift will be made upon your death. Your estate may receive an estate tax deduction for your bequest. CFCG has sample wording your advisor may use when establishing a will or trust.
Charitable Remainder Trust (CRT)	Create a CRT, name a fund at CFCG as the beneficiary, and receive an immediate tax deduction. Receive income from the gift for life or for a specified number of years, after which your fund will receive the remaining assets.
Charitable Lead Trust (CLT)	Provide income to a designated charitable fund for a period of years, then direct the remaining—often appreciated—assets back to your beneficiary. A CLT allows you to pass assets on to your children or grandchildren while minimizing gift and estate tax liability.
Charitable Gift Annuities	In exchange for a charitable gift you will receive a guaranteed stream of income for life. Part of the annuity payments may even be tax free.

CFCG accepts a wide variety of assets, usually deductible at their fair market value, including cash, publicly traded and closely-held stock, LP, LLP, & LLC shares, retirement assets or IRA's, private foundation assets, life insurance policies, and real estate.

charitable giving. We welcome the opportunity to work with you to achieve your charitable goals.

6. We offer a variety of funds to help fund holders support the causes they care about most. You may also choose to support one of the 11 endowment funds we hold for non-profit organizations.

7. We multiply the impact of gift dollars by pooling them with other gifts and grants. Your fund becomes part of an enduring philanthropic resource for Central Georgia.
8. We offer maximum tax advantages under state and federal law. Cash gifts can receive an income tax deduction of up to 50% of adjusted gross income (AGI); gifts of appreciated assets are deductible at fair market value up to 30% of AGI.

9. We work with professional advisors to create highly effective approaches to charitable giving. We provide great flexibility which allows you to achieve your financial and philanthropic goals.
10. We are a community leader uniting people and resources for positive change. CFCG is uniquely positioned to convene agencies and coordinate resources to help address our region's most pressing issues and opportunities.

Effective Solutions for a Variety of Situations

Professional Advisor | Julia G. Baldwin

Julia G. Baldwin is a veteran of almost 30 years in the financial services sector and is a vice president and senior financial advisor with the McSwain-Baldwin Group at Merrill Lynch where she holds the designation of Certified Financial Manager. She is Chairman of the Professional Advisors' Council of the Community Foundation of Central Georgia.

"The Community Foundation of Central Georgia presents an opportunity for my family and for my clients to meet many varied needs in our community through donations during our lifetimes as well as to create lasting legacies for our families through planned giving," said Mrs. Baldwin. "The professional staff, volunteer CFCG Board members, and members of the Professional Advisors' Council are valuable resources to individuals and families who are interested in learning how best to share their wealth in the most cost- and tax-efficient manner. The knowledge and training of the Foundation's staff and Board members is extremely helpful to donors in determining the highest and best use of their charitable dollars. In even the most complex situations, my clients have found the process of making a one-time gift or recurring gifts, or establishing charitable trusts to be a pleasant and rewarding experience.

"Donor advised funds and charitable trusts established through the Community Foundation provide flexibility to address the ever-changing needs of our community. Long past the donors' lifetime, their gifts will continue to support organizations that meet the needs of our citizens—from education to health care, to the arts, to recreation, to assistance for the indigent, and more. It is a privilege for my colleagues and me to serve the Foundation through our participation on the Professional Advisors' Council. It is our hope that the liaison we provide between our clients and the Foundation ultimately benefits our entire community for years to come."

The Community Foundation is proud to host the Planned Giving Design Center—A free, on-line resource for charitable gift and estate planning—for professional advisors in our community. We are committed to supporting your efforts to help your clients design and implement philanthropic, financial, and estate plans to meet their goals. Register and receive:

- Articles written by acclaimed experts on complex planning issues and unusual gifts.
- Quick and easy calculations of charitable deductions for all types of gift planning options (CRTs, annuities, etc.)
- Email news alerts with links to detailed commentary regarding the latest IRS rulings, court decisions, and legislation.
- A library of case studies on the integration of planned giving into a client's overall financial and estate plans.

To register log on to www.cfcga.org. Click on "Forms and Resources" and then the Planned Giving Design Center icon.

For other helpful advisor resources, please visit our website at www.cfcga.org. On the Advisor Resources page you will find a sample fund agreement, benefits of establishing a fund, information on using a charitable remainder trust to create a donor advised fund, the differences between CFCG and a private foundation, and much more! And, as always, please contact the Foundation's office if you ever have any questions, wish to receive additional information, or would like to set up a meeting to discuss a client's charitable interests. We want you to know about the exciting things the Community Foundation can offer you and your clients!

We have recently updated our website and hope you will take a look!

Unfortunately we cannot fit everything into this annual report, so we have added some important information and links to the new site. Here you will find:

- resources for fund holders, professional advisors, and non-profit organizations
- how to apply for a grant
- a list of scholarship funds, downloadable applications, and other financial aid links
- how to establish a fund
- information on the new Pension Act of 2006, including IRA charitable distributions
- history of CFCG's unrestricted donors
- articles of interest on a variety of topics, including charitable giving and family philanthropy
- information on the Merrill Lynch Community Charitable Fund

Affiliate | Community Foundation of Fort Valley

The Foundation is making a big difference in the community...it gives us the opportunity to do some things we probably wouldn't be able to do with our annual budget.

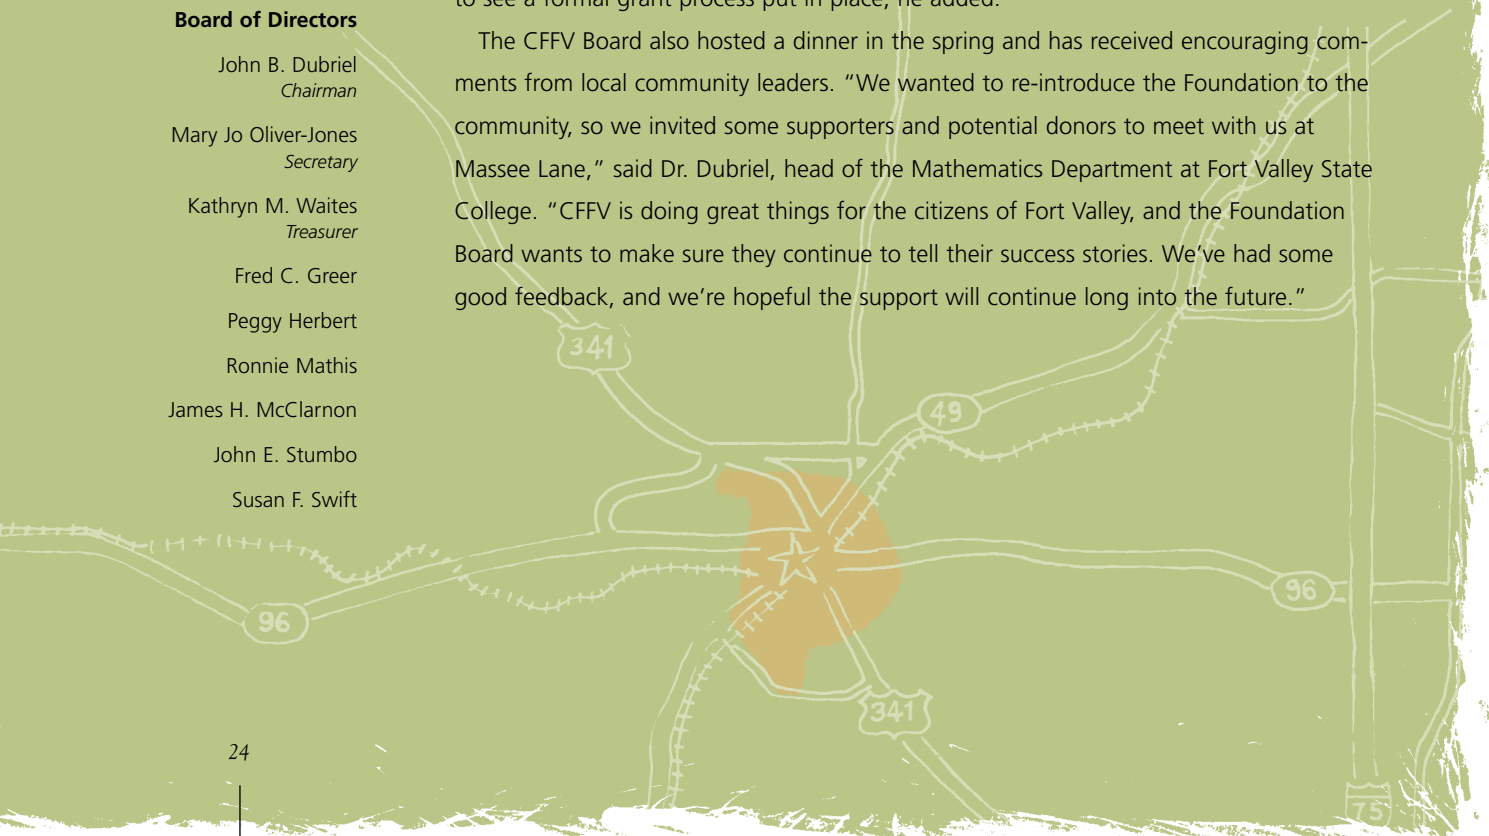

The Community Foundation of Fort Valley (CFFV) has taken some big steps this year. The Foundation received a large anonymous gift in March of 2006 and made its first grant from the Unrestricted Fund in May. The grant was to the Kay Community Service Center, a center for adults with disabilities, and helped fund a four-day trip to New Orleans for 13 people, including Special Olympics athletes who were competing in the USA Volleyball Tournament. "The grant helped us with transportation, housing, entry fees, and some meals," said Todd Youngblood, Executive Director of the Center. "Our team came in second, out of 10 U.S. teams, and the group got to see Bourbon Street, the French Quarter, and some of the devastating results of Hurricane Katrina." One trip led to another, and the Kay Center group also went to Atlanta, where they placed third in a competition held at Emory University. Youngblood added, "The Foundation is making a big difference in the community. For us, the big thing is that it gives us the opportunity to do some things we probably wouldn't be able to do with our annual budget. This was an opportunity to travel somewhere we never would be able to go otherwise."

Dr. John Dubriel is the Board Chairman of CFFV, an affiliate of the Community Foundation of Central Georgia. He said he and other Board members chose the Kay Center because they wanted to reward an organization the entire community supports. "And this looked like a good one," he said. "The young man who runs the Center does a terrific job. Basically we felt it would be good publicity for the community and helpful to them." The Board would eventually like to see a formal grant process put in place, he added.

The CFFV Board also hosted a dinner in the spring and has received encouraging comments from local community leaders. "We wanted to re-introduce the Foundation to the community, so we invited some supporters and potential donors to meet with us at Masee Lane," said Dr. Dubriel, head of the Mathematics Department at Fort Valley State College. "CFFV is doing great things for the citizens of Fort Valley, and the Foundation Board wants to make sure they continue to tell their success stories. We've had some good feedback, and we're hopeful the support will continue long into the future."

Affiliate | Community Foundation of Coffee County

With assets now totaling more than $1 million, the Community Foundation of Coffee County (CFCC), an affiliate of the Community Foundation of Central Georgia, continues to be a growing resource for the Douglas-Coffee County community. CFCC Interim Board Chairman, Robert L. Porter, said the Foundation Board recently approved a grant to the Coffee Alliance for the Arts. The Alliance is a volunteer organization that since 1986 has been an important component of community life, bringing cultural experiences and events to adults and children throughout Coffee County. Janice Chambers, Director of the Alliance, explained why such grants are so vital to the whole community. "Our mission is to provide cultural exposure and access at low cost to as many people as possible," she said. "We are a small community two hours away from a city of any size, and it's challenging to provide good cultural enrichment opportunities."

The Alliance hosts twelve professional musical concerts each year, plus outdoor summer "Munch and Music" performances and, for the past 10 years, has brought in the Missoula Children's Theatre, a week-long children's summer camp. The Alliance also sponsors a week-long arts event at Coffee County High School with guest artists, lecturers, and other school performances and events throughout the year. "We are thrilled with the CFCC grant and with all the donations and grants that support us. We very much appreciate all the support we get," Ms. Chambers said.

Also during the past year, the Douglas-Coffee County Chamber of Commerce established an Economic Development Fund with CFCC, a permanent endowment that is managed by the Community Foundation of Central Georgia. The Fund is used to promote the economic development of Coffee County. The South Georgia Soccer Club Endowment Fund was also created to support the activities of The South Georgia Soccer Club, Inc., a local non-profit organization. The Soccer Club was established several years ago by members of the Coffee County community who sought a way promote fun, sportsmanship, physical fitness, and skills through soccer for the children of Coffee County and surrounding counties. The Board of Directors of the Club believed that establishing the Fund would provide a reliable base of annual income to support its activities and was the best way to advance its charitable goals.

Foundation Board members say they are proud of the growth CFCC has experienced since its inception in 2002. With access to the Community Foundation of Central Georgia's comprehensive support services, professional investment management, and the leadership of its dynamic local Board of Directors, the Foundation will undoubtedly continue to grow and benefit the community and its quality of life.
