Part I, Line 2 - Procedures for Monitoring the Use of Grant Funds

The Community Foundation of Central Georgia conducts due diligence on all potential grantees to ensure the eligibility for application or receipt of funds, the tax exemption of the organization, the charitable nature of the organization, the charitable nature of the grant request, and the financial health and reputation of the organization. Telephone inquiries are made on a regular basis to obtain current information on the organization as part of due diligence. If needed, as in cases of new organizations or organizations that have not previously been awarded, site visits are conducted to review the organization and its programs. Prior to funds being disbursed to a potential grantee organization, requests for disbursement must be approved by the Executive Committee or the Board of Directors of CFCG.

After approval, grantees receive their grant payment along with an award letter specifically stating how the funds are to be used. Final reports on how the grant funds were used are required for all grants from competitive grant-making programs. Final reports may also be required for any grants from a donor advised, organizational endowment, scholarship or designated fund if so requested by the donor.

In addition to the above, if, in the due diligence process, an organization is found to require expenditure responsibility based on the fund type or the organization's tax exempt status, CFCG staff determines if the project has a charitable mission. If so, and if the Board of Directors approves making the grant, staff develops a grant agreement to present to the
